

Franklin School
Condensed from the Oral History of Lucille Johnson Evans White

Well, (Franklin School) it was about one mile on State Street and about 5th West—a two-room schoolhouse. They had two classes in one room and two in the other. I went to the first and second grade in one room and then the third and fourth in the other.

Well, (lunch) usually it was just a sandwich. And I got it at Dad's store. And we didn't have any refrigeration so we just had canned meat or cheese, maybe boiled eggs—not much. We put it in a paper sack. We had paper sacks.
